NO FEE, DONATION, OR PURCHASE IS REQUIRED TO ENTER OR TO BE SELECTED FOR THE BELLAGIO CENTER RESIDENCY PROGRAM

The following rules, terms, and conditions (the “Residency Rules”) govern participation in the Bellagio Center Residency Program (the “Residency Program”).

By checking the acceptance box and submitting an application or otherwise participating in the Residency Program, you expressly, fully and unconditionally agree to be bound by, and to at all times be in full compliance with, the Residency Rules. Further, you indicate that you understand and intend the Residency Rules to be the legal equivalent of a signed, written contract between you and the Residency Program Entities (as defined below) and equally binding, and you accept the Residency Rules without limitation or qualification. If you do not agree and accept the Residency Rules, you are not eligible for the Residency Program and you should proceed no further with the application process and exit the website immediately.

The Residency Program is void where prohibited by law.

The Residency Program is open to individuals that agree to be, and can be, legally bound by these Residency Rules (hereinafter “Applicant(s)” or “you/your”). Please see Section 2 for detailed eligibility criteria. During the duration of the Residency Program, there may be clarifications issued applicable to the Residency Rules, which will be updated on this website and communicated to Applicants via the email they have provided. Please direct any questions or communications about the Residency Rules or the Residency Program to bellagioapplicant@rockfound.org.

1. DESCRIPTION OF THE RESIDENCY PROGRAM

The Rockefeller Foundation, with a domicile at 420 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY (“the Foundation”), the sponsor of the Residency Program, is a charitable foundation headquartered in New York. RhythmQ: RQ Platform Software (the “Application Facilitation Partner”) has been engaged by the Foundation to host the application platform for the Residency Program. The Rockefeller Foundation and the Application Facilitation Partner shall collectively be referred to in these Residency Rules as the “Residency Entities.”

Every year, approximately 100 artists, practitioners, and scholars from around the world participate in The Rockefeller Foundation’s Bellagio Center Residency Program. Bellagio seeks to inspire collaboration across sectors and professions, political affiliations, and national borders. In sharing their knowledge, approaches, and perspectives, residents strengthen their work and collectively transform the issues that define our present and shape our future.

Based in Lake Como, Italy, the Residency Program offers participants the opportunity to unleash their creativity and advance groundbreaking work. Residents can take advantage of focused, uninterrupted work time in this unique environment while participating in an interdisciplinary, cross-cultural cohort. They form lasting bonds and stay connected to The Rockefeller Foundation long after their residency ends as members of the Bellagio Network.

A. Overview of Project Requirements

Applicants must have a specific project they want to advance during the residency and demonstrate how their project will be catalyzed by this opportunity.

Projects should be bold and compelling, with significant positive social impact and breakthrough potential. Projects can include scholarly research, applied practice, or a work of art. There should be a specific output or deliverable that is meaningfully advanced during the residency period and likely to be highly influential. Projects should be timely and well-suited to benefit from the unique cross-cultural, cross-disciplinary environment of the Bellagio cohort.

Proposed projects that the Foundation supports through each residency must be in furtherance of its exempt charitable purpose. Projects must satisfy the requirements for charitability set by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service, which include such things as provision of relief to the poor, advancement of education or science, preservation of the natural environment, or promotion of social welfare. Projects may promote social welfare through a variety of means, including by eliminating prejudice and discrimination, defending human and civil rights, or combating community deterioration.

Projects cannot have a primary purpose of generating profit or benefiting a for-profit company - any commercial benefit can only be incidental when compared to the charitable outcome resulting from the project. When presenting your project, please make sure that you are clearly articulating the direct and significant charitable benefit of the work you will be doing, including who will benefit from the project, and how that benefit will be accomplished through your work.

Projects that build upon existing programs from an Applicant's place of employment are allowed. However, if the Applicant works for a for-profit company, the project must be independent from the duties of the paid job function.

Note that projects that require access to specialized equipment, offsite excursions, or access to research libraries are not a good fit for this program. Residents must bring any materials needed for their project with them to the Bellagio Center.

B. Project Types

Applicants must select one of the following project types that best describes their residency project:

- Art: This project type will advance artistic practice by creating a new work of art. Art projects can be at the research, production, and/or post-production stage. All artistic disciplines are eligible including but not limited to visual arts, literary arts, music composition, and filmmaking. Multi-disciplinary projects also are eligible. All Applicants should explain in their application how the work will ensure public access.
 - Please be aware that if a project includes filmmaking, Applicants will need to confirm:
 - Content: how the production and dissemination of information in the film developed through the project would not be possible without the support provided in the Residency, how the content will be educational and add value to public knowledge regarding the issues addressed therein, including through dissemination of considerations, ideas, or other concepts that go beyond what is being currently published in mainstream media, or otherwise add to or change the discourse on the relevant topic.
 - Dissemination: plans to make every effort to achieve wide distribution for the content produced through the project beyond its traditional distribution channels either by ensuring that the content is freely available to the public or by creating and implementing a plan to promote and allow republication of the content as a way to maximize the educational benefits of the content.
- Applied Practice: This project type originates from a professional domain outside the realms of academia and the arts (e.g., private sector, public sector, civil society) and can take many different forms such as a book, article, organizational plan, or policy brief.
- Scholarly Research: This project type will advance a scholarly discipline or field of study and often leads to a published book or article.

Regardless of project type, all projects must demonstrate a clear charitable purpose.

C. Residency Themes

The General Open Call is open to artists, practitioners, and scholars working in any discipline or area of study. Projects can be based on any topic but must demonstrate clear social impact and charitable purpose.

In addition, The Rockefeller Foundation will also identify topics of specific interest to the Foundation.

These topics can be found on the Residency Program website.

If your project relates to more than one theme, select the one that is the strongest fit. If your project does not favor one theme more than another, select General Open Call.

2. ELIGIBILITY

A. Eligibility Requirements

All Applicants must:

- Be 18 years of age or older;
- Be conversant in English, consistent with a B1 level or higher in the Common European Framework of Reference (“CEFR”). According to the official CEFR guidelines, someone at the B1 level in English can 1) understand the main points of clear standard input on familiar matters regularly encountered in work, school, leisure, etc.; 2) deal with most situations likely to arise while traveling; 3) produce simple connected text on topics which are familiar or of personal interest; and 4) describe experiences and events, dreams, hopes, and ambitions and briefly give reasons and explanations for opinions and plans;
- Submit their application materials in English;
- Confirm that they can participate fully in the Residency Program under the laws of the jurisdiction(s) in which they reside. Any entry received from an Applicant residing in a country where the Residency Program is not legal in all regards shall be ineligible to enter the Residency Program; and
- Own or otherwise have and maintain all necessary rights, licenses, authorizations, and consents with respect to any and all intellectual property and other proprietary rights (including the rights of publicity and privacy) in connection with their respective projects.

B. Ineligible Persons

The following individuals are not eligible to apply:

- Persons appearing on the lists provided by the United Nations, the European Union, Member States of the European Union, the United Kingdom, Switzerland, the United States, and other authorities that maintain economic and trade sanctions that prohibit regulated persons from transacting or dealing, either directly or indirectly (i.e., through a grantee or other third party), with any person on a sanctions-related list of designated persons that they maintain.

- Individuals who reside in, or are governed by, countries that are prohibited by law, regulation, treaty or administrative act (including, without limitation, those promulgated by the United States) from entering into trade relations (including, without limitation, the export of technology) with the United States or its citizens.
- United States government officials as defined by the Internal Revenue Service;
- Individuals who are or would be officials in public office in countries outside of the United States during the Residency Program;
- Candidates for public office or individuals who are working on a campaign for a political candidate anywhere in the world during the Residency Program;
- Individuals who have had a residency at the Bellagio Center within the last five years;
- Individuals who have had two prior residencies at the Bellagio Center. Individuals may not have more than two residencies within their lifetime;
- Rockefeller Foundation personnel and their Related Parties;
 - “Foundation Personnel” includes all trustees, officers and staff of the Foundation, as well as non-trustee members of the Investment Committee;
 - A “Related Party” means any living spouse, domestic partner, parent, sibling, child or other family member or individual with whom there is an intimate personal and/or economic relationship - for trustees, directors, officers, key employees and persons exercising the power of such positions, the following living relatives:
 - His or her parents, step-parents, grandparents and step grandparents;
 - His or her siblings and half-siblings;
 - The spouses of his or her siblings and half-siblings;
 - His or her spouse or domestic partner;
 - His or her children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren;
 - The spouse of each of his or her children, grandchildren and great grandchildren;
 - Other family members or individuals with whom there is an intimate personal or economic relationship; or
 - Employees of the Application Facilitation Partner, and any of their subsidiaries and affiliates, and immediate family members (spouse, parent, child, sibling and their respective spouses, regardless of where they live) or persons living in the same households of such employees.

C. Collaborative Projects

The Residency Program is predominately designed for individuals but accepts applications from teams of two people working on a collaborative project. Teams that bring people together from different geographies, institutions, or disciplines are especially welcome to apply.

When applying as a team, please note:

- Each team member is required to submit a unique application and will be evaluated separately;
- Each team member must submit their own application – we are not able to accept applications submitted on behalf of another person;
- The role of each team member should be clarified in each application;
- Team members should have comparable experience and backgrounds - each team member's credentials will factor into the evaluation;
- Applicants who are based in the same organization are not eligible to apply as a team;

The Residency Entities reserve the right in their sole discretion to verify the eligibility of any Applicant and/or any Applicant's compliance in full with these Residency Rules. At all times, the decision of the Foundation as to eligibility shall be final and binding.

3. APPLICATION PROCESS

A. General Requirements

The application process for the Residency Program will be held from March to November 2026.

All application materials must be submitted through the online platform in accordance with the Residency Program timeline. Applications include the pre-application questionnaire, an expression of interest, and full application, additional attachments outlined below, and all other communications, materials, and activities relating to or arising from the Residency Program application ("application materials").

No one will be entitled to compensation of any type for participation or preparation of any application materials, nor will the Applicant or the authorized representative of the Applicant be considered an employee, agent, representative, independent contractor, or consultant of any of the Residency Entities. Submitting application materials for the Residency Program does not constitute an application for any other program hosted by the Residency Entities or any of their affiliates.

Application materials should be submitted in English. The Residency Program's written communications will be provided in English. It is important to highlight that a significant value of this Residency Program is in the connections with the broader Bellagio Network, which primarily operates in English.

All application fields that are marked as “*required” in the application materials need to be fully completed for eligibility. If these requirements are not met, the application materials will not be reviewed.

Each application should include the components described in this section.

B. Video

Each application must include a brief video of no more than 90 seconds that introduces you, your project, and why now is the ideal time for a Bellagio Center Residency. Your video should not be professionally produced – an informal video created on a smartphone is expected.

Your video must adhere to the following guidelines, or else it will render your application ineligible:

- No more than 90 seconds in length;
- Must be in English
- Must be captioned. See instructions on how to caption YouTube videos here.
- Should not include images of identifiable children;
- Should not include copyrighted material (including, but not limited to, music) for which you do not have a license;
- Your video’s privacy settings should be set to “Unlisted” (not private). When setting as Unlisted, only those with the YouTube URL will be able to access and view the video, including the Bellagio Center Residency Program Team and the expert panel.
- Check to make sure embedding is turned on.

For questions or technical support, write to bellagioapplicant@rockfound.org.

C. Curriculum Vitae (CV)

Each application must include a CV or resume of no more than five pages that includes the following information as applicable:

- Degree(s) (degree-granting institution(s), field(s) and date(s) of degree(s) awarded);
- Current position (location, dates of employment, professional title, and responsibilities);
- Previous positions (in chronological order, including locations, dates of employment, professional titles, and responsibilities);
- An abbreviated list of publications that demonstrates the Applicant’s expertise in the area of published work especially in the past five years (articles, books, chapters, reports, exhibitions) including full citations with the name of the publication, title of work, date of publication;

- Relevant work: For academics this may include supervision of master's and PhD theses, conference presentations, grants, honors, or awards, and professional affiliations. For practitioners this may include service on boards, grants, honors, or awards, and professional affiliations. For artists this may include exhibitions, presentations, public performances, grants, honors, etc.;
- Other relevant contributions that demonstrate professional achievement.

4. SELECTION

Final selection will be made by the Foundation. Successful Applicants (the "Residents") will be notified via the email they provided in their application by December 31, 2026. The Foundation expects to select up to 100 Residents for participation.

Expressions of interest will be evaluated according to four criteria:

- Expertise and Influence: Is the Applicant at the right stage of their professional career to benefit from a residency?
- Clarity: Does the Applicant have a clear objective for what they aim to accomplish through a residency?
- Thematic and Strategic Alignment with The Rockefeller Foundation: Does this project broadly align with The Rockefeller Foundation's mission to promote the well-being of humanity?
- Impact: Is the project poised to drive a breakthrough?

Following the expression of interest stage, those invited to complete applications will first undergo an administrative review for completeness, eligibility, and general fit with the program. After administrative review, applications will move to an expert panel for review. During the expert panel review, each application will be evaluated on the following dimensions:

- Impact: Does the project feel like it could be a breakthrough, for example yielding fresh insights or significant progress, on an important issue facing our world?
- Clarity: Is there enough specificity to the project, its output, and the plan for achieving it? Is the project poised to be meaningfully advanced during a residency?
- Expertise: Does the Applicant demonstrate mastery suitable to their project? Are they a recognized leader with evidence of significant contributions to their field?
- Influence: Is the Applicant well-positioned to influence change related to their project? Do they have access to audiences and networks that will ensure their project takes root?

While projects can evolve after selection, Residents are required to submit any material changes to The Rockefeller Foundation for approval. If a Resident is no longer pursuing their project or participating in the Residency Program in a meaningful way, either the Foundation or the Resident may make a determination that the Resident must withdraw from the Residency Program.

Applications will be evaluated by staff from The Rockefeller Foundation, along with select members of The Rockefeller Foundation's Bellagio Alumni Network with relevant experience. The expression of interest part of the application will be reviewed by staff from The Rockefeller Foundation with the support of an AI tool to complement and better manage human review resources. The Foundation will select expert reviewers and the Residency Entities shall be responsible for: (i) allocating duties among the reviewers; (ii) operationalizing review, including supporting reviewers on how to apply the selection criteria. Decisions of The Rockefeller Foundation, informed by input from expert reviewers, shall be in their sole discretion and binding on each Applicant. Applicants do not have the right to dispute any decision or ruling of any expert reviewers or any of the Residency Entities and agree not to do so.

No Applicant shall have the right to be informed of the evaluation results for any application materials, whether their own or that of a third-party Applicant, except that Applicants who advance and who are ultimately selected will be notified of those decisions in due course.

Further, before Applicants are selected as Residents, Residency Entities may request the Applicant to execute a Resident's affidavit verifying identity, eligibility and acceptance of rules, a liability release and/or publicity release, and a grant of rights consistent with the provisions of these rules, and any other documents needed to satisfy these Residency Rules (collectively, the "Documents"). The Documents must be completed and submitted by the deadline provided by the Residency Entities in the notification, or the Residency Program may be forfeited and an alternate Applicant chosen, time and circumstances permitted. Chosen Residents will also be required to sign a Residency Program Agreement before the beginning of the program that covers rules of participation in the Residency Program. The Residency Entities reserve the right in all cases to withhold the Residency Program decisions until the potential resident's identity and eligibility are established.

All Applicants are subject to eligibility verification as described above and compliance with these rules. Residency Program positions are non-transferable.

5. PARTICIPATION IN THE RESIDENCY PROGRAM

If awarded a residency, you will receive room and board at the Bellagio Center in Lake Como, Italy. This includes meals, a private studio for working, access to laundry facilities, and ground transportation to/from the Center upon arrival and departure. Travel funding to and from your home country is also available. Residents can also bring a spouse/partner to join them for part or all of the first 5 days of the Residency Term. Most reasonable costs for visas to attend the Residency Program will be covered. Residents do not receive a monetary grant or stipend.

If selected, you will be notified of the dates for which you have been selected.

Any levies, taxes and fees associated with submissions to and participation in the Residency Program are the sole responsibility of the Applicant. The Applicant agrees that the Applicant is solely responsible for any reporting obligations for, and for the payment of, any levies, taxes and fees to any governmental authorities or jurisdiction arising from or in connection with the Residency Program. Any such Applicant shall provide any supporting documentation requested to the Residency Entities confirming proof of legal status and taxation.

The Residency Program does not cover medical care, insurance or taxes or provide support for accompanying dependents. The Applicant should take out adequate insurance to cover their trip and stay in Italy.

6. PERSONAL DATA & PRIVACY

The Rockefeller Foundation and, as applicable, other entities involved in administering the Residency Program (together, the “Residency Entities”) may collect and process personal information about an Applicant (“Applicant”) in connection with the Residency Program. Personal information may include identifiers and contact information (such as first and last name and email address) and other information submitted in application materials. This processing will be carried out in accordance with (i) the Foundation’s Privacy Policy (available at <https://www.rockefellerfoundation.org/privacy-policy/>) and (ii) applicable data protection laws and regulations. The Residency Entities will use Applicants’ personal information for purposes consistent with the Foundation’s Privacy Policy, including to: (a) receive and administer applications; (b) assess Applicants’ candidacy for a residency; (c) administer, operate, and secure the Residency Program and related systems; and (d) comply with legal requirements and protect the safety, property, and rights of the Residency Entities and others. Depending on the jurisdiction and context, these activities may be carried out on the basis of legitimate interests, performance of a contract or steps prior to entering into a contract, compliance with legal obligations, and/or consent where required by law.

If you submit materials that contain the personal information of any individuals other than yourself, you represent and warrant that you have provided appropriate notice to such individuals and that they have given permission for you to disclose their information to the Residency Entities and for the Residency Entities and their service providers to use such information for the purposes described herein.

By checking the acceptance box and signing up for the Residency Program or sending application materials, you expressly consent and agree to the collection and use of the personal information in those materials and you acknowledge that your personal information will be processed in accordance with the Foundation's Privacy Policy and these Residency Rules for the purposes of administering and operating the Residency Program.

For the avoidance of doubt, The Residency Entities may contact you regarding your application and the Residency Program, including administrative and operational communications. Where permitted by applicable law, and subject to your communication preferences, the Foundation may also use your personal information to contact you about their charitable activities and organizational missions. You may opt out of non-essential communications at any time.

The Residency Entities may disclose the Applicants' personal data to third parties: (i) when required by law or by a judicial resolution authorizing it; (ii) to cooperate with government authorities in judicial investigations; (iii) to enforce or protect the intellectual property or rights of the Residency Entities; (iv) to fulfill any obligations and/or commitments directly or indirectly related to this Residency Program. In connection with Bellagio Center residency or conference applications, personal information may also be shared with the Institute of International Education, Inc. ("IIE"), which provides program administrative and outreach services, and which may retain such information in accordance with its own privacy policy. You expressly consent and agree that by making a submission to the Residency Program, your personal information may be transferred in or out of the European Union or Argentina and to and from The Rockefeller Foundation and/or the Application Facilitation Partner for the aforementioned purposes and uses. Personal information may be processed and stored in the United States and other countries where the Foundation or its service providers maintain operations. Where required by applicable law, appropriate safeguards will be implemented for international transfers of personal information.

The provision of personal data by Applicants is voluntary, notwithstanding being a necessary requirement for signing up for the Residency Program. In case of not providing personal data, or providing false or inaccurate data, the Applicant understands that they will not be able to participate in the Residency Program and/or may be disqualified.

The Applicant has the right to access their personal data for free at intervals not less than six (6) months unless a legitimate interest is proven. The Applicant may also request the rectification, updating, and deletion of their personal data by reaching out to the contact detailed in the Foundation's Privacy Policy.

The personal data of Applicants submitted to the Residency Program will be subject to applicable data privacy laws and regulations, as well as the individual Privacy Policies of each Residency Entity. Please read the privacy policies of each Residency Entity before submitting your personal information to the Residency Program (see privacy policies of The Rockefeller Foundation). The terms of the privacy policies of the Residency Entities may not be the same, and it is the Applicants' responsibility to read the terms of each privacy policy.

7. PUBLICITY AND LICENSE GRANT

Except where prohibited by law, by submitting application materials, each Applicant expressly consents to and hereby grants to the Foundation (and its respective licensees) the right and license to use, in their sole discretion, the name, image, voice, persona, likeness or other personal identifying characteristics, biographical information, testimonials and other statements, and trademark, if any, of the Applicant, the country location, and/or the background of the Applicant for promotional, educational or charitable purposes in connection with the Residency Program and/or the charitable mission of the Foundation, in any form of media, now known or hereafter created, worldwide, without further permission, payment, or consideration. No application materials will be returned to Applicants. Except as expressly provided in the Residency Rules, Applicant retains all rights to Applicant's application materials. Applicant hereby grants to the Foundation (and its respective licensees) a non-exclusive, worldwide, royalty-free, transferable, sublicensable, perpetual and irrevocable license to copy, display, perform, distribute, create derivative works and otherwise use or exploit Applicant's application materials for educational or charitable purposes in connection with the Residency Program and/or the charitable mission or work, including promotion of the Foundation.

8. INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY OF RESIDENCY ENTITIES

Nothing in the Residency Rules, the Residency Program website, in any Residency Program materials, or in any other statements made in connection with the Residency Program grants to you or any Applicant the right to use or license any intellectual property or other proprietary rights of the Residency Entities. You shall not use the name, trademarks, service marks, logos or any copyrighted material of the Foundation without the express written consent of the Foundation, which the Foundation may withhold in its sole discretion.

A. Applicant Representations & Warranties

By entering this Residency Program, you represent and warrant that your participation complies with the Residency Rules and that you specifically have the necessary rights to (1) authorize the publication and dissemination of the application materials; and (2) allow the Residency Entities to use and authorize others to use the application materials.

By providing application materials, you represent and warrant that (i) the application materials are original work, not copied in whole or in part, created exclusively by you, (ii) that you own all intellectual property rights in and to the content of the application materials, (iii) no other party has any right, title or interest in any of the content of the application materials, and (iv) you are providing the application materials gratuitously without any restriction or limitation on use. If you are selected as a Resident, the intellectual property rights with respect to any materials created during your residency will be governed by the Residency Agreement.

The Applicant further represents and warrants that the application materials do not contain or reference:

- Threatening, slanderous, disparaging, or obscene language;
- Discriminatory language (including hate speech) based on race, national origin, age, gender, gender expression, gender identity, sexual orientation, religion, size, appearance, or disability;
- Sexually explicit content or personal attacks;
- Any content that would violate any law, statute, ordinance, rule, or regulation, or any agreement with another person or entity;
- Any content that is the subject of any actual or threatened litigation;
- Any content that directly or indirectly promotes commercial services or products;
- Software viruses, Trojan horses, worms, time bombs, bots, or any other computer code or files that are designed to disrupt damage, impact, or limit the functioning of any software or hardware;
- False or misrepresented data;
- Content violating any privacy or publicity right of any person or entity;
- Content that constitutes political campaigning, lobbying, or electioneering;
- Content that is the intellectual property of another person or entity, in whole or in part, unless authorized by such person or entity, or that may violate the intellectual property rights of third parties, in whole or in part, whether copyright, trademark, trade secret, or patent; or
- Content that requires or is subject to any duty of confidentiality, attribution, or any compensation obligation.

The Foundation, in its sole discretion, reserves the right to disqualify any Applicant for a breach or violation of the Residency Rules or the aforementioned representations and warranties.

B. Residency Entities Have No Obligation

Each Applicant acknowledges that third parties may submit information and entries to the Residency Entities that may contain information, ideas, concepts, and approaches similar to, or the same as, those you submitted to the Residency Program, and that the Residency Entities may already be working on information, ideas, concepts, and approaches similar to, or the same as, those you submitted. By entering, each Applicant acknowledges and agrees that the Residency Entities' actions with respect to another entry or work of its own, even if similar to, or the same as, your entry, will not create any liability of any kind to the Residency Entities or others involved in the Residency Program. Each Applicant also acknowledges and agrees that participation in the Residency Program and/or selection for the Program does not create any obligation on the part of the Residency Entities to promote, use in any way, or to take any further action regarding application materials or an Applicants' involvement in the Residency Program.

9. GENERAL CONDITIONS

Contact Information. During the duration of the Residency Program, each Resident is solely responsible for maintaining the accuracy of all contact information for the Resident provided to or for the Residency Program. Residency Entities will not be responsible for communications sent to out-of-date or inaccurate contact information.

Error in Transmission. Residency Entities are not responsible for lost, late, incomplete, or misdirected entries; lost, interrupted, or unavailable network, server or other connections; miscommunications, computer or software malfunctions; transmission problems; technical failures; garbled transmissions; damage to user's software or transmission devices; or other errors or malfunctions of any kind, whether human, mechanical, electronic or otherwise that may occur in connection with the submission of any application materials or the Residency Program.

No Lobbying. The Residency Program may not support activities that constitute lobbying as defined in Internal Revenue Code Section 4945(d)(1) and the regulations thereunder. Such prohibited activities include any attempt to influence any legislation – U.S. or non-U.S. – through communication with any member or employee of a legislative body or any other governmental official or employee who may participate in the formulation of legislation in which reference is made to specific legislation and a view on such legislation is expressed. Legislation refers to legislation that has already been introduced in a legislative body or to a specific legislative proposal that an organization supports or opposes. The regulations also prohibit support of “grass roots lobbying communications,” which are defined as communications that: (1) refer to specific legislation, (2) reflect a view on such legislation, and (3) encourage the recipient of the communication to take action with respect to such legislation. Further, the dissemination of the results of any activity that is designed to be nonpartisan analysis, research, or study may not be limited to or be directed toward persons who are interested solely in one side of a particular issue.

No Political Activity. The Residency Program may not be used to influence the outcome of any U.S. or non-U.S. public election, or to carry on, directly or indirectly, any voter registration drive (within the meaning of Internal Revenue Code Section 4945(d)(2) and the regulations thereunder).

Right to Cancel. The Residency Entities reserve the right, in their sole discretion, to cancel, terminate, modify or suspend the Residency Program should a virus, bug, non-authorized human intervention, fraud, or other cause beyond the Residency Entities' reasonable control corrupt or affect the administration, security, fairness or proper conduct of the Residency Program.

If for any reason, the Residency Program is not capable of running as planned for reasons outside the control of the Residency Entities, which, in the sole discretion of the Foundation, may corrupt or impact the administration, security, fairness, integrity, or proper conduct of the Residency Program (or any portion thereof), each of the Residency Entities reserves the right to cancel, terminate, modify, or suspend the Residency Program (or a portion thereof) and, in that event, the Residency Entities shall have no further obligation to any Applicant.

Right to Disqualify a Resident. The Foundation also reserves the right in its sole discretion to disqualify a Resident if the Resident or any individual associated with the Resident, is found to be (a) tampering or attempting to tamper with the entry process or the operation of the Residency Program, or any website maintained or operated by the Residency Entities; (b) using any robotic, macro, automatic programmed or like type of entry methods; (c) violating the Residency Rules; (d) submitting more than one application; or (e) engaging in unsportsmanlike, unethical, inappropriate or disruptive action, or any action inconsistent with the Residency Program or the charitable mission of the Foundation.

Waiver. Any Residency Program Entity's failure to enforce any term of these Residency Rules will not constitute a waiver of that provision or bar the Residency Entities from enforcing that term in the future.

Partial Invalidity. If any provision of these Residency Rules is found to be invalid or unenforceable by a court of competent jurisdiction, such provision shall be severed from the remainder of these Terms and Conditions, which will otherwise remain in full force and effect.

Headings. The headings in these Residency Rules are inserted for convenience and identification only, and are not intended to describe, interpret, define, or limit the scope or intent of these Residency Rules. By submitting an entry, each Applicant waives any right it may have to claim ambiguity of these Residency Rules or any advantage or any impact on interpretation of these Residency Rules that may arise from any such ambiguity claim.

10. LIMITATION OF LIABILITY, RELEASE & INDEMNIFICATION

A. LIMITATION OF LIABILITY
